TRICKED TO DEATH.

The Due de Campstelle, Who Married the Widow of Singer, Drops Dead of Fright.

There seems to be a halo of romance, mystery, and tragedy surrounding the death of one who has brought them into contact with singer, the millionaire sewing-machine man. It seems that his wife, formerly governess in his family, after his death travelled extensively in Europe. While she was in the winter in the Paris Grand Opera house, by strategy and purchase obtained for him at the time of due de campstelle, but poor man, his luck and his happiness were short-lived.

He and his wife were in Naples at the time of great earthquake, and the terror so severe that he contracted suddenly a nervous affection of the heart, which made his life miserable. He had never been, however, having exertion, when he suffered that most terrible agony, Neuralgia, Spasm of the Heart (Angina Pectoris).

Knowing this, an enemy of his, envying his good fortune, determined to play a practical joke upon him. He sent an undertaker to the Chateau de Posses, in Normandy, where the Due and his wife were resting to measure the line for himself.

When the undertaker entered, a sudden spasm contracted the Due's heart, and he died dead upon the floor. It was a terrible scene.

Suspicion of the heart is becoming a common complaint nowadays. Sudden, intense fits of anger, or fear, and prolonged over-exposure of the brain or nerves may be causes of insatiable disease. Half the sudden deaths seem to spasms of the heart, and thousands of men and women are walking the streets to-day with a consciousness that they are the greatest neurotics in the world.

Samuel Crist (colored) was charged with feloniously breaking and entering in the daytime the stable of C. H. West and stealing one of his horses worth $4.

Annie Gale, Mr. West's cook, testified that the prisoner, who had been in Mr. West's employ until recently, came into the kitchen, took the keys, and went to the stable. She saw him throw several bales of hay out of the loft-window into a wagon which was in the alley.

Other witnesses testified that they saw the prisoner take the hay from the stable. The accused was sent on to the grand jury.

Theorem of Melvina Wilkinson, charged with being a fugitive from justice from Anoka county, where she was charged with larceny, was committed until to-day.

Joseph Freeman (colored) was found $20 for carrying concealed weapons.

MURRAY IS DOLLARD.

PINKERTON COMES DOWN HERE FOR ONE OF THE "DIAMOND THIEVES."

He Gets a Requisition for Murray, and Proposes to Leave Ward with the Norfolk Authorities.

Photographs taken here of Murray and Ward, the "diamond thieves," were sent to the Pinkerton Agency, and Murray was identified as Joe Doe, who is charged with "safe-blowing" in Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. Pinkerton at once secured from Governor Lounsbury a requisition upon Governor Lee for the crime. Yesterday morning the Governor issued the necessary warrant, and it was in hand Mr. Pinkerton left for Norfolk.

IDENTIFICATION.

Mr. Pinkerton relies not only on the photograph of Murray, but on various body-marks observed by Sergeant Tomlinson and forwarded as a part of the description of the prisoner. He left here fearing that Murray and Ward are one and the same, and convinced that there will be no great difficulty in convicting him.

As far as known there was no reward for the capture of Dollard. In this matter—that is, in coming here—Mr. Pinkerton acted as the agent of the State of Connecticut.

PERSONAL.

Murray and Ward are the men who some weeks ago were arrested for suspicious loitering about the jewelry store of J. H. Tyler & Co., and who, being released on security given to be of good behavior, left this city. Then came the Norfolk robbery. Then two men answering their description were heard of as bound for Norfolk and Western train from each case (Gatineau Station, of Les Anglais, Cal., and New George Taylor, Holyoke, Mass.). It has saved many a weary train from the same assume may a pauperizing heart from the grip of death; may a promising law, divides, and separates, great and small alike, and classed last.

According to Mr. Pinkerton's statement Ward and Murray are both "professional" who have done a good deal of safecracking in this country and in England. Their stores are their equipment. Both of them served terms and are skilled fitters.

Darragh's Administrator against Blackford, Trustee. From the Corporation Court of the city of Lynchburg. Affirmed. Judge Lewis delivering the opinion; Judge Richardson dissenting.

Commonwealth against Larkin. From the Corporation Court of the city of Lynchburg. Reversed. Judge Fauntroy delivering the opinion.

Commonwealth against Kriese. From the Corporation Court of the city of Lynchburg. Reversed. Judge Fauntroy delivering the opinion.

Commonwealth against Plunkett. From the Corporation Court of the city of Lynchburg. Reversed. Judge Fauntroy delivering the opinion.

East against Garrett. From the Circuit Court of the county of Accomack. Affirmed. Judge Richardson delivering the opinion.

Seville against Terry. From the Corporation Court of the city of Lynchburg. Affirmed. Judge Hinton delivering the opinion.

The Commonwealth against Plunkett. From the Corporation Court of the city of Lynchburg. Reversed. Judge Fauntroy delivering the opinion.

None of the diamonds or jewelry stolen from Chapman & Gale was found on the prisoners' persons, and so far as is known the Norfolk people haven't enough evidence against them to convict.

The retribution is only for Murray. The Connecticut people do not ask for Ward. If he was with Murray in robbing the Bridgeport safe, there is not the necessary evidence in hand as yet to warrant an indictment against him.

The rendition warrant issued by Governor Lee, it is understood, is only to be operative when the Norfolk authorities are through with Murray. It is believed that Murray cannot be convicted in Norfolk.

THE DIRECTIVE IN NORFOLK.

The following is a Dispatch special from Norfolk:

The police are still busily engaged in securing evidence for the examination on the 21st instant of the two men Ward and Murray, who are confined in the station-house as the perpetrators of the Chapman & Gale burglary. What has been done to secure the men for trial has not been divulged.

The rendition warrant issued by Governor Lee, it is understood, is only to be operative when the Norfolk authorities are through with Murray. It is believed that Murray cannot be convicted in Norfolk.

MINOR MENTION.

According to Mr. Pinkerton's statement Ward and Murray are both "professionals" who have done a good deal of safecracking in this country and in England. Their stores are their equipment. Both of them served terms and are skilled fitters.

When last captured here, notwithstanding the fact that they were closely searched by the officers—stripped, indeed—one of them managed to secrete a roll of banknotes. Later on, when taken to Mr. Samuel M. Page, their counsel, in the presence of an officer, the notes were slipped into the vest-pocket of Mr. Page. This was his fee.

None of the diamonds or jewelry stolen from Chapman & Gale was found on the prisoners' persons, and so far as is known the Norfolk people haven't enough evidence against them to convict.
